

Dr. Marc Crundwell

You may remember Dr. Marc Crundwell from his You Tube videos “Response to Intervention” and “The Development Continuum of Reading”.

When he’s not behind a microphone or in front of a camera, Marc Crundwell is a dedicated member of the GECDSB Psychology Department, though you may also remember him from the webinar, “Executive Functioning”.

Marc is a consummate professional with the highest level of integrity. He represents the GECDSB with passion, enthusiasm and a great sense of humour.

He does a great deal with staff, providing professional development and resources to enhance their daily responsibilities with and understanding of kids. His work on the “Reaching Every Learner” PD series is responsible for the development of early intervention plans in all of our elementary schools.

But while Marc works with staff, he primarily works for children. He’s the assigned Psychologist at a number of schools and the students are always happy to see him, despite the sometimes daunting nature of his visits.

When he tests students for exceptionalities, he makes them feel safe and calm, taking the time to explain what’s happening and how it could affect them. Marc is equally thorough and empathetic with families reviewing the results in detail and being available for them if they require any additional explanations or support.

Marc advocates for the kids and their families to get them the information or services they need. He will never hesitate to share his opinion, when it is sought. He’s also been an advocate for his colleagues, serving on the P.S.S.P. union executive where he demonstrates the same positive collaboration and communication skills.

For 27 years Dr. Marc Crundwell’s outstanding service has had a significant impact on our Board, and thanks to his work on projects like the resource guide, “Learning Differently” and his multi-media presence...he will always be remembered.
